Reflections on the Law of Food & Agriculture

Neil Hamilton 1 credit condensed course LAWW 7511

Thursday 10:00 a.m. – 12:00 p.m. Central Time Five sessions: August 21– October 2, 2025

Synchronous course taught remotely

This special condensed course taught by visiting professor Neil Hamilton helps to kick off our semester. It's taught in 6 remote sessions during the first 6 weeks of the semester. Recognized internationally for his insightful analysis of food and farms, Professor Hamilton is an Emeritus Professor of Law at Drake University Law School and is the author of the recent books, The LAND REMAINS: A MIDWESTERN PERSPECTIVE ON OUR PAST AND FUTURE (2022) and THE RIVER KNOWS: HOW WATER AND LAND WILL SHAPE OUR FUTURE (2023). This course considers the complex policy issues within agriculture and their impact on our food system.

Food, Farming & Sustainability (Survey of Agricultural Law)

Susan Schneider 2 credit full-semester course LAWW 7412 Friday, 10:00 a.m. – 11:45 a.m. Central Time Synchronous course

This course provides a survey of the intertwined legal topics that make up the body of agricultural law with a critical analysis of how and why agriculture is treated differently than other industries. The course covers many of the substantive areas of agricultural law with a focus on current issues of significance. It is taught by LL.M. Program Director and W.H. Enfield Professor of Law Susan Schneider.

Food Law & Policy (required for LL.M.)

Susan Schneider 2 credit full-semester course LAWW 7862

Tuesday, 10:00 a.m. – 11:45 a.m. Central Time

Synchronous course, on-campus

This course, taught by Susan Schneider provides a holistic look at our food system. It explores the network of laws that frame that system and impact us all. An overview of regulation by both the Food & Drug Administration and the USDA is provided, using current events and emerging issues to address wide ranging law and policy considerations.

Agriculture & the Environment (required for LL.M.)

Christopher Kelley 2 credit full-semester course LAWW 7962 Wednesday, 10:30 a.m. – 12:10 p.m. Central Time Synchronous course

One of Professor Kelley's signature LL.M. courses, Agriculture and the Environment examines the impact that agricultural production has on the environment. This policy-oriented course examines the tensions between the need to produce food and fiber efficiently and the concern for sustainability and the protection of our natural resources. A global perspective is included. Professor Kelley is a tenured professor at the University of Arkansas School of Law and a Fulbright Scholar with international connections with Ukraine, Moldova, Georgia, and the surrounding regions.

Effective Legal Writing

Professor Christopher Kelley 1 credit full-semester, Pass/Fail LAWW 7231 Wednesday, 9:00 -9:50 a.m. Central Time Synchronous course

Professor Kelley explores effective legal writing strategies, exposes problems with legalese, and helps students to improve their writing skills. Using a format that he has used to offer instruction to hundreds of lawyers and law students worldwide, students discuss examples in class and explore bad habits to avoid. The course does not involve writing exercises and is offered for ungraded credit.

The Right to Food

Uche Ewelukwa Ofodile

2 credit full semester course; online

LAWW 714V
Hybrid (Asynchronous with 2 online meetings)
Taught by Professor Uche Ewelukwa Ofodile, E.J. Ball
Professor of Law, this course provides an overview of the historical development of the right to food; evaluates the rights, obligations and responsibilities of rights-holders and duty-bearers of the right to food; and examines the legal and non-legal mechanisms that are increasingly used to adjudicate the right to food. Professor Ewelukwa is internationally recognized for her work in human rights, international law, and intellectual property law. This course is primarily an online, asynchronous course, but includes 2 synchronous meetings to allow class discussion and Q&A with the professor. 9:00 – 12:00 Wednesday (all Central Time)

Synchronous remote delivery

This unique course provides the back-story to policy development in Congress. Developed and taught by David Grahn and based on his decades of experience in D.C. working at high levels of the federal government, this fast-paced course introduces the impact of the Office of Management and Budget and the cost scoring system on federal agricultural policy making. Current farm policy issues are discussed within the context of budgetary constraints and pressures. Professor Grahn will teach this course remotely from the Washington D.C. area,, and it will not be recorded. Regular semester courses will be rescheduled to allow for this class to meet during the listed times.

Independently Conducted Courses with Faculty Support

Advanced Legal Research & Writing (required for LL.M.)

Lauren Manning 1 credit full semester course LAWW 770V

This required course includes research in a specialized area of agricultural or food law and the development of a paper that demonstrates rigorous legal analysis and quality legal writing. A variety of different article formats are available, from practice-oriented to scholarly. Professor Lauren Manning monitors student progress and provides assistance as needed, including the opportunity to workshop works-in-progress. While there is no prerequisite for this course, LL.M. candidates typically take it during their second full semester or after several semesters of part-time work.

Independent Research in Agricultural & Food Law

Susan Schneider or Professor Kelly Nuckolls 1 credit full semester course LAWW 771V

This course provides an opportunity for independent research in agricultural and food law conducted under the supervision of a faculty member. This can involve the drafting of a research article or undertaking a project outside of the scope of the classes offered. Professor Schneider approves the initial proposal and works with the student to assign a faculty advisor.

Practicum in Advocacy (candidates must generally have completed at least one semester to participate)
Kelly Nuckolls
1-4 credit full semester course

This course provides experiential learning opportunities involving practice, regulatory, or policy work in agricultural or food law under the supervision of an experienced professional and Professor Kelly Nuckolls. Professor Nuckolls is uniquely qualified to provide mentorship and supervision of our Practicum students. Her prior work in D.C. as Policy Analyst for the National Sustainable Agriculture Coalition helped her develop connections with advocacy groups across the country.

Professor Nuckolls now directs the Food and Agriculture Impact Project of the LL.M. Program.
